

Home / News / Local News / Salinas News

Bomb-making materials, lingerie found in SUV

UPDATED 4:28 PM PDT Mar 21, 2012

Text Size: A A A

A bomb squad investigates a suspicious device inside a sport utility vehicle near Castroville Wednesday. (March 21, 2012)

CASTROVILLE, Calif. — A sport utility vehicle parked on Molera Road near Highway 1 in Castroville was packed with women's lingerie and bomb-making materials Wednesday, deputies said.

Just before noon, a quarter mile of Molera Road was shutdown by sheriff's deputies while a bomb squad used a robot to investigate a suspicious Honda CRV parked in an artichoke field.

Inside, they found all the materials needed to make a homemade bomb, Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. Ron Willis said.

The bomb squad also found a book titled "Anarchist's Guide To Bomb Making" and a pile of lacy women's lingerie.

The Honda's driver, Lawrence William Guzzino, was arrested and taken into custody for questioning.

Guzzino has home addresses listed in Salinas and Watsonville. He was out of prison on parole after being convicted of committing arson in Fresno.

Officials were alerted by passersby who became suspicious of Guzzino while he was parked on Molera Road and laying down in his Honda's front seat.

At first, the bomb squad thought there was dynamite in his SUV, but it turned out to be road flares taped together and pipe capped at one end.

Tweet Pin It

Copyright 2012 by KSBW.com. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.